

SYSTEM AND METHOD OF NETWORK USAGE ANALYZER

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A network analyzer comprises a network query client residing in a first network, and a network query server residing in a second network protected by a firewall. The network query server is operable to collect usage data associated with the second network and respond to at least one query regarding usage of the second network from the network query client.